20th Annual Concordia Nike Classic

The Concordia Nike Classic has developed a reputation over the years as one of the premier basketball tournaments in North America, and this year the field promises to provide fans with top calibre play once again.

The nationally-ranked Laurentian Vees, the Winnipeg Lady Wesmen, Manitoba Bisons and McGill Martlets highlight the eight-team field.

The other four teams, the Ottawa Gee Gees, Waterloo Athenas, Queen's Golden Gaels and host Concordia Stingers are all capable of upsetting the top four.

The Vees, two-time defending National Champions, are strong favourites to capture their third CIAU title. They are led by four members of the national team programme, Sue Stewart, Carolyn Swords, Diane Norman and Martha Sandilands.

The Lady Wesmen, runners-up to Laurentian in the 1989 and 1990 Classic, have an equally impressive line-up featuring Andrea Hutchens, Michelle Chambers and Sandra Carroll. Winnipeg has already beaten Laurentian once this year and are looking for their first Classic championship.

Manitoba strutted their stuff in an October blitz of Quebec when they downed McGill, Bishop's and Concordia on consecutive days. Veterans Arlyn Adams, E.J. Ogoms, Jo-Anne Onishko and Adrienne Toogood will lead Manitoba's high-powered offense.

McGill will be lead by league all-stars Debby Morse, Jane Ross and Martina van der Vlist and rookie sensation Melanie Gagné. The McGill-Queen's opening round game will feature two well-balanced basketball clubs.

Ottawa, Queen's and Waterloo have all played well in preseason and are capable of registering an upset in the first rounds. The host Stingers enter the tournament with a 1-6 record but coach Mike Hickey is confident that the Stingers will start to show an improvement as injured players return to the line-up. The Stingers line-up, led by rookie all-Canadian Sharon Sandy, Tanya Guitman and the Gagnon twins (Catherine and Caroline) gives Concordia one of the smallest but quickest teams in the country. Veterans Roberta Boyle, Joan Seaman and Linda Benjamin return this weekend and will add strength to the young Stinger front line featuring rookies Christine DeJordy, Julie Kinsella and Karen Jarrett-Thelwell.
